

Master of Acupuncture and Herbal Medicine

Alhambra Medical University was established to train students to be proficient in Acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM). The curriculum focuses on enabling graduates to be proficient in TCM diagnostic skills as well as biomedical concepts and diseases.

Accreditation and Approval | The University is accredited by the Accreditation Commission for Acupuncture and Herbal Medicine (ACAHM) which enables qualified students to receive Title IV Federal Financial Aid. It is also upon graduation; students are eligible to take the California Acupuncture Board Licensing Exam and National Certification Commission for Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine (NCCAOM) Examination. The University is approved by the California Bureau of Private Postsecondary Education to offer both English and Chinese classes.

Location | Alhambra Medical University is located in the San Gabriel Valley, a growing multicultural in Southern California. The campus is close to Hollywood, Santa Monica beach resorts and has easy access to public transportation, and abundant recreational and leisure activities.

The University operates on a quarter system and applications are accepted for program four times a year in January, April, July and October.
